KENTUCKY KERNELS.

The potato crop in Breckinridge county is the poorest in years.

The State Board of Equalization raised the assessment of Barren county $155,060.

The Green River Times has been started at Rockport, Ky., by R. L. Barnes.

It is said there are several cases of smallpox at Ark, a small village in Bell county.

The cost to the state for sending the troops to Clay county to protect the Bakers was $4,000.

The salary of the postmaster at Ashland has been increased $300, and that of Catlettsburg $100.

K. Stone has been made a member of the advisory committee of the Lexington fair for Scott county.

A colored lawyer, L. R. Diggs, of Lexington, has located in Georgetown for the practice of his profession.

Prof. George H. Craft has been elected principal of the city school at Elizabethtown at a salary of $100 per month.

Henderson is putting "a large pot in the small" in the arrangements for entertaining the Kentucky editors next month.

Hon. W. C. P. Breckinridge, of Lexington, it is said, will make the race for congress in the Ashland district.—Sentinel-Democrat.

Ruggles' campmeeting, near Flemingsburg, begins on July 27 this year, and closes on August 6. Eminent divines will be present.

The Fiscal Court of Pulaski county will submit the proposition to the voters in November for a bond issue of $100,000 to construct turnpikes.

Of the 2,000 clerks required at the main office in Washington to take the twelfth census of the nation, Kentucky's apportionment will be 82.

A Floyd county Baptist minister was tried before Commissioner Burns at Louisa one day last week for manufacturing still paraphernalia. He was held over.

John Powers, the wealthiest farmer in East Kentucky, died on the 8th at his home in Boyd county. His reputed wealth was estimated at a quarter of a million.

Editor C. C. Moore, of Lexington, is to be entertained with a dinner at Columbus, O., upon his release from the Ohio state penitentiary Saturday, July 8, by leading Free Thinkers.

The high price of cattle in Montgomery and adjoining counties has caused young cattle to be sent there from New York, Pennsylvania and Michigan for sale.—Owingsville Outlook.

The Greenup Gazette announces that Lieutenant-Governor Worthington is a candidate for governor. If given another term he would probably pardon all the convicts and thus save the state their keep.

A combine was effected June 21st between the Transylvania printing company and the large book firm of J. B. Morton & Co., and Wm. Purnell. The stock company was formed with $30,000 capital stock. It is one of the largest deals that ever took place in Lexington business circles.

The Kentucky Press Association will hold its annual meeting at Henderson, July 11 and 12, and at the close of the meeting there will be an excursion via Chicago to Petoskey, Michigan. The party will spend three days at Petoskey. The outing promises to be one of the most delightful in the history of the association.

An apparently authentic report reached here yesterday via Berea that John Harrison, living just over the Jackson county line, was shot from ambush and mortally wounded by unknown parties, who used a shotgun loaded with buckshot. He was on his way to the cornfield when shot. No further particulars were given.—Richmond Register.

Probably the oldest woman in Madison county is "Aunt" Betsy Yates, colored, of Kingston, who is stopping with her son, Charley Yates, near the ice factory "Aunt" Betsy, who claims to be 100 years old prepared the wedding supper when H. B. Dillingham and wife were married 53 years ago and wasn't any spring chicken, then, having children grown. She has her second eye-sight, is hale and hearty and bids fair to see several more summers.—Richmond Register.

It is not perhaps so essential to the welfare of Kentucky to put an end to the mountain feuds as it is to set forth with perfect clearness to the outside world the fact that these family wars among the mountaineers do not in the slightest degree reflect the character or condition in the state at large. The portion of our state where they occur is sparsely settled, lacking in fertility and without railroads, telegraph wires or newspapers. The natives should not be a law unto themselves, but the general public of the country should know that they are a people unto themselves and not representative Kentuckians.—Big Sandy News.

W. P. NORRIS,

Who Was a Citizen of Wolfe County for a While, Writes Entertainingly and Sends Greeting to Friends.

JACKSON, KY., June 19, 1899.

EDITOR HERALD:—It has been quite awhile since my many friends of Wolfe have heard from me,—the last time I believe when I was in the war, and associating with Alabamians on the now cotton fields of that state. I remember all of the Wolfe boys who were with me in our line of patriotism, and will say to them that I had enough of the war, and will not try for any more. I am in touch with an up-to-date newspaper outfit, and in hunt for a good location to run either an up-to-date Democratic, free silver, 16 to 1, anti-expansion newspaper, or a no-political good local paper. Should anyone know of a good location, and will throw some inducement out for me to come among them with such a laudible cause, let them communicate with me here.

Jackson shows wonderful improvement during the past year, due no doubt to my absence. A number one bridge spans the river here. Some 25 new dwellings built on the depot side of the river, and perhaps 10 on the town side. There are about 20 stores in Jackson, three physicians, two dentists, one newspaper, The Hustler, 19 lawyers one college, and a vote to be taken next Saturday for a graded school, which will carry. Hargis Bros. and Day Bros. mercantile houses, each do a wonderful wholesale business in counties above here. An $8,000 brick, four story, up-to-date of the latest modern hotel now to be in course of construction here. It will be lighted by electricity, heated by steam, and a first-class barber shop to be in it. It will be built by C. J. Little on the site of the present Jackson Drug Co., the latter building a fine drug store on the corner below. The hotel will be managed by our popular druggist, Dr. R. A. Bohannon, which is an evidence of a to be popular hostelry, and to be called "The Catalpa," after a well known tree of that variety now standing on the site, and which will be left standing. This is a long needed improvement for Jackson, and a boon to the traveling public who now have to trudge up a steep hill from the present hotels.

Considerable interest is being manifested here in the building of the Ohio & Kentucky R. R. from here into the Caney coal fields, and those on the inside "tell me that" it is only a question of short time for breaking dirt for same. The moral and religious atmosphere of Jackson is wonderfully improving, due greatly to the vigilance of the police authorities and the hasty execution of the law against the guilty. The police court is presided over by C. X. Bowling, with Charley T. Byrd, a Wolfe county man, for city prosecutor. The "blind tiger" cannot thrive here, and other evidences of evil are conspicuously absent.

At the Democratic mass meeting here last Saturday when some 600 men attended I never saw a more orderly crowd, and perfect sobriety prevailed, and the smoothness of it called for the lavish compliments and admiration of everybody. While it unanimously instructed for Goebel, Hager and Hill, much harmony existed as to forestall any inroads in the large Democratic majority in this county by the Republicans no matter who the nominees may be. Alex. Crawford is the nominee for the legislature. Edward Marcum, Walter Day and Jas. G. Baily are each talked of as the Republican candidate, but regardless of who is nominated he will be subordinated to Crawford's large majority, and who will be promptly in his seat at Frankfort at the proper time to vote for Joe Blackburn for U. S. Senator. I predict 25,000 majority for the Democratic state ticket this fall, which will make it an "easy sailing" for the Nebraskan Wm. Jennings Bryan and a healthy rebuke to McKinleyism, Hannamism and Philistineism in 1900.

The late grand jury of Breathitt is also to be commended for the noble week's work it has just recorded in history. 175 indictments were returned against all offenses known in the calendar of crime, and all indications points to a good omen for Breathitt county.

In a talk with Hon. J. B. Marcum here, he intimates that he will be a candidate for the Republican nomination for Judge of the Court of Appeals from this District. While Mr. Marcum differs with myself in politics, I am quick to appreciate his legal ability and his enviable standing as a citizen, and that if elected, he will wear the judicial ermine with honor to himself and to his friends. In this connection allow me at present to express my preference for Hon. A. F. Byrd, of Campton, for our next Circuit Judge, and Hon. A. H. Stamper, of Campton, as our next Congressman. These gentlemen will reflect great credit to their country if elected to these positions of eminence, and for which they are each particularly fitted.

Best regards to THE HERALD and our many friends in Wolfe.

W. P. NORRIS.

Logan Johnson and wife were shopping here last week.

Written for THE HERALD.] TREACHERY IN THE PARTY.

There was a man around whose life Sacred honor once did tie,
But O, his doings at Louisville,
Has made Kentucky wipe her eye.

We hailed him as Kentucky's pride,
Kentucky's bright and honored son,
But now disgrace elings o'er his brow
By listening, O, to Goebel's tongue.

A tool by nature, honor's cause
Could never linger in his way;
Justice and principles thrown aside,
I tell you, friends, he's built that way.

No more our faith can e'er abide,
In one who plays a traitor's part,
In one whose heart and hands are dyed
With falsehood from the very start.

And thus his name shall be erased,
From Democratic roll of fame,
We'll let him slide, for O, his tricks
Have nearly caused Kentucky's shame.

But O, there's one on this dear soil,
Whose past can never show no stain,
Devoid of tricks to conscience true,
Watt Hardin is his honored name.

SAM WILSON.

EX-SENATOR A. H. STEWART,

Now Sojourning at Swango Springs, Is the Gentleman Who Lent His Aid to the Good Roads Proposition.

Among the visitors at Swango Springs this season are Dr. A. H. Stewart and wife, of Richmond, Ky. Dr. Stewart formerly lived in Floyd county and represented that district in the state senate a few years ago. And he it was who introduced and had passed in the senate a bill to make an experimental turnpike from Frenchburg to Hazel Green, the object being to utilize the state convicts in building good roads throughout the mountains of Eastern Kentucky. THE HERALD had for six months prior to the meeting of the legislature advocated the passage of such a bill, and Dr. Stewart championed our cause and complimented THE HERALD for its advocacy of the measure by locating the place for experiment as above stated. Had the bill become a law at that time the mountains would ere this have experienced an era of prosperity as yet unknown. Lands would have enhanced in value, our products would have doubled in proportion and markets for their disposition would have been easily accessible by reason of the increased facilities in transportation. Indeed the bountifulness of our blessings would have been almost boundless. Aye, we should have flourished even as the green bay tree. But alas! the efforts of THE HERALD and of Dr. Stewart were alike unavailing because the people of the bluegrass, who had in years ago availed of the same aid we were asking of the state, were unwilling that we should have it. The cry "class legislation" was raised and mountain men who had been raised on sassafras and spice-wood tea, so far forgot their raising as to join in the refrain. The bill was killed in the house and the death knell to Eastern Kentucky's prosperity was sounded. Dr. Stewart, by his heartiness in the matter at the time won a warm place in the affections of THE HERALD and we have since held him in high esteem for the manly stand he made. But his manliness has made him. Before he ran for the senate an epidemic of smallpox in the Sandy Valley was about to depopulate that district when he mounted his horse and rode the hills and hollows, stopping at each hovel and hut where a suspect was to be found until the dread disease was wiped out. He waited not for a call, but went of his own free will and accord—without remuneration or even hope of reward. But reward came in his nomination and election to the senate and while filling that position he met with and subsequently married a most estimable lady, since which time he has been a successful practitioner at Richmond, Ky. His wife was a Miss Hargis.

During his term as senator he served with the lamented Rainey Pieratt, who represented this district in that body, was his physician during his illness, and after his death came home with remains and attended the funeral obsequies. His devotion to the dead senator is said to have been brotherly, and all who were aware of his affectionate attention were attracted to him. He was a captain in Col. Colson's command, the Fourth Kentucky, during the Spanish-American war, and though the exigencies never brought him into active service he demonstrated his patriotism and a desire to do his duty, which, by the way, seems to have been a paramount principle with him during all his life. Truly, virtue hath its own reward.

Dick Russell is again the miller at my mill and all who have old wheat which they wish made into flour should bring it in now, before the new wheat comes in, and they will get the best flour.

J. TAYLOR DAY.

Rev. J. H. Wallin filled his regular appointment at this place last Sabbath.

Clay County is Quiet.

There is no doubt that Clay county is quiet. The newspaper reports from there say it is quiet; John G. White, of Winchester, says it is quiet; Sheriff Rev. P. White's uncle says it is quiet, and C. B. Little, the attorney for the Bakers, says it is quiet. It might also be recorded that Tom Baker is quiet; that John Baker and Frank Clark are quiet; that George W. Baker is quiet; that Will White, Wilson Howard and Burch Stores are also quiet. The living Bakers are quietly stopping in London, Ky., and so long as they remain away from Manchester, Clay county is likely to remain quiet. All disturbers must remain at a distance or they will be quieted.—Lexington Leader.

The Hoffman-Pieratt Insurance Co. is one of the new firms in the field, and is composed of good material for the business, viz: Albert Hoffman, one of the oldest, if not the oldest, insurance men in the state, his son, who was born an insurance agent, and Willie H. Pieratt, of our town, who has acquired good knowledge of the business within the last six months and bids fair to prove the peer of any who write insurance. Willie has an arrangement with the Hoffmans by which he is to handle the business in five of our counties, viz: Wolfe, Morgan, Menefee, Lee and Magoffin, and the good people of these counties will find that he is thoroughly reliable. He is a young man of high moral character, strict integrity and business enterprise, and with the Hoffmans to direct, and he to do there is no telling how much insurance they will write. When you want your house, barn, etc., etc., insured see or write to Willie Pieratt, and give him the preference.

Ed Day, who has been clerking in the postoffice for some time past, has resigned the position and will next month go to Midland, Texas, where his brother, James S. Day, is in the hotel business.

C. C. Hudson, Sharp & Dohme's traveling man from New York, was a guest of the Day House Tuesday night.

Breathitt county gained world-wide renown as the home of the Strong-Amy feud, but she now has a new lease on notoriety in having given to the world and to Kentucky Democracy one David B. Ridwine.

Tom Mayne, representing the Ball-Warfield Drug Co., Ironton, O., was a guest of the Day House Tuesday night.

Chairman Redwine: "Are you ready, Mr. Goebel?"
Mr. Goebel: "No."
Chairman Redwine: "Then I adjourn the convention until 'steen o'clock to-morrow."

THE HERALD.

SPENCER COOPER, : : : Editor.

HAZEL GREEN, KY.

THURSDAY, : June 29, 1899

THE convention which convened on Wednesday, the 21st inst., to nominate Democratic candidates for the various state offices, on Tuesday last nominated Hon. Wm. Goebel, of Kenton county, for governor on the twenty-third ballot, the vote being 560 for Goebel and 581 for Hardin. Stone withdraws from the contest, and a majority of his followers flocking to the Kenton county candidate made his nomination. He went into the convention the weakest man in the lot, and he emerges from it the weakest candidate that could have been chosen from the trio. Trickery and treachery were twin companions throughout the session of the convention, which will go down in history as the most disgraceful political meeting ever held in Kentucky. It is known of all men that Gen P. Watt Hardin was robbed of over 100 votes in the outset, and it is now generally thought, as THE HERALD intimated when Capt. Stone entered the contest, that he was running in the interest of Mr. Goebel. As Charley Bronston said, the convention seems to have been in the hands of assassins, cut-throats and thieves, and their choice is anything but pleasing to the great mass of Democrats throughout the commonwealth. But we shall see what we shall see. We have heard nothing whatever of the other candidates at this writing.

ABOUT the action of Judge D. B. Redwine, in his capacity of chairman of the state convention held at Louisville, several prominent Democrats of the Hazel Green precinct have requested us to announce that there will be a meeting held here on Saturday afternoon next at 3 o'clock, for the purpose of condemning his course, which they claim was unfair, unjust, ungentlemanly and arbitrary. The gentlemen who demand this meeting are all good Democrats, and have heretofore been partisans of Judge Redwine, but they denounce his course in that convention as damnable and disgraceful. A full attendance of the Democratic voters of the precinct is requested.

THE Democratic State Convention has originated a new hot weather drink. It is called "Red Wine with Crushed Ice," and was suggested by the Redwine-Goebel autocracy. It is intended to be a pun on the name of the temporary chairman and an allusion to the unspeakable coldness of Senator Goebel.

REPUBLICANS are rejoicing at the nomination of Mr. Goebel by the Democrats, but in the language of that delegate, who, when asked how he liked the nomination, replied: "With Bill Goebel as the nominee and the Goebel bill to back him, who in the h— can beat him?"

I was seriously afflicted with a cough for several years, and last fall had a more severe cough than ever before. I have used many remedies without receiving much relief, and being recommended to try a bottle of Chamberlain's Cough Remedy, by a friend, who, knowing me to be a poor widow, gave it to me, I tried it, and with the most gratifying results. The first bottle relieved me very much and the second bottle has absolutely cured me. I have not had as good health for twenty years. Respectfully, Mrs. Mary A. Beard, Claremore, Ark. Sold by J. T. Day.

REDWINE'S DISGRACE.

Redwine is an object lesson, an awful example and a lurid explanation of lawlessness.

Redwine is a "judge;" a mountain "judge." Let us hope there are not many like him, but he shows what a Judge will do and how little justice a litigant may expect, unless he and the Judge belong to the same political ring.

For two days Redwine has stood on the platform at Music Hall simply to throttle by force and, if necessary, by active violence, the will of the Democratic party. He has no scruples; he has no conscience; he has as yet no regret. He is there to serve Goebel. He owes his position to fraud at the county convention, and he intends that the state convention shall not punish that fraud.

Last night fifty roughs, tools of the most desperate political adventurers in Louisville, packed the platform; each man held a special permit from Redwine and was under Redwine's orders.

Hundreds of others of like character, and with Redwine credentials, were scattered through the hall, and the representative character of the convention was destroyed.

Redwine was playing the role of Cromwell and subjecting the convention to the will of one master.

This man, who is called a judge in the mountains, was put on the rack by Bronston, and his false pretenses stripped from him, and he stands today the most despised person in Kentucky politics.

Redwine was the nominal choice of the delegates in the hall; of the delegates recognized by Johnston.

Yet holding his credentials from those delegates, about to call on those delegates to vote on a committee report, Redwine for two days has refused to permit a call of the counties; has denied that a convention in its representative capacity exists, and has refused even to put a question of adjourning, himself deciding that question in accordance with the necessities of the Goebel conspirators.

If these delegates cannot vote on a motion to adjourn they usurped power when they voted for a temporary chairman, and Redwine is usurping functions still inherent in the representatives of the party, and every decision he has made is null and void because of fraud.—Louisville Post.

STRIKERS CALLED DOWN.

Sharp Talk to the Democratic State Convention by the Hon. C. J. Bronston.

"Can I be heard? (Great yelling.) Won't you sit down just one moment? (Great confusion.) I appear as a partisan of no candidate. I come to ask my fellow-Democrats to hear me just one moment. That party which I love dearer than life itself is at this moment in the hands of cut-throats and assassins (Great applause) and I want to appeal to the sober judgment of the people here assembled, who are representing the toilers in the field, and those working in the workshops of the country, and my appeal in its essence is that you must be patient for two hours longer. I want to beg my fellow-Democrats to settle their toils right here. No such arbitrary ruling of the chairman as we had a moment ago should drive Democrats from the party. That is exactly what they want to do. (Applause mingled with hisses.)

A voice: "Nobody hisses but a snake."

"I care not for your hisses. I have not asked to be heard by the hired thugs from the slums of Louisville who are surrounding this convention with their brassknucks, pistols and knives. I do not ask them to hear me. I wave at them my hand in contempt and say that you could be as easily bought the other way. (Great cries.) And I want to say more. I want to say to my fellow-Democrats that we have tried appeals. We have tried pleadings. Come back to this hall at 8 o'clock. Listen (Cries and cheers lasting some minutes), I want to say another word and I am done. (Cheers.) Those of you who want to go out can do so. I am not keeping you. Shall I finish? (Cries of yes, yes, with loud cheers and yells.) You can not run us off that way. We will stand our ground. Shall I go on? (Cries, yes, yes.)

"Come back at 8 o'clock with this determination—that if this chairman intends to adhere to his present policy of adjourning this convention against the will of the delegates, then we will elect a chairman that won't adjourn. (Cries and cheers.) We will not be driven from this hall. Will you come? Will you come and stay until we get through? (Cries and cheers.) God bless the old Democracy of Kentucky. I am through. Make no mistake, because it is the party I represent and not the man. (Great applause) I want to ask you to hear Mr. Rhea. Let him talk to you.

"There seems to be some misunderstanding. No man, if he is honest to himself, can misunderstand what I said. I said come back at 8 o'clock. I said meet with your regularly organized delegation. And I further said if there was any attempt to adjourn you without your votes that we would elect another chairman and hold the convention." (Great applause and deafening cries.)

Mr. P. Ketcham, of Pike City, Cal., says: "During my brother's late sickness from sciatic rheumatism, Chamberlain's Pain Balm was the only remedy that gave him any relief." Many others have testified to the prompt relief from pain which this liniment affords. For sale by J. T. Day.

RAILROAD.

The Extension of the Ky. & S. A. Ry. a Probability.

The Agitator is informed that the C. & O. people are now considering the feasibility of an extension of the Ky. & S. A. railroad. There seems to have been a misapprehension as to the outlay necessary to make the road. The bill between this place and Rothwell can be crossed with a much less grade than that at Olive Hill without a tunnel, and by making a two hundred foot tunnel on the coal level the grade approaching the tunnel would be easy. By an easy grade up the branch behind Greenwade hotel the top of the vast plateau that extends throughout Eastern Kentucky can be reached, and the inexhaustible supply of timber and canal coal reached. There is also another route that has been surveyed and found practicable—Myers Fork of Beaver route. Since it has been demonstrated that the hill between here and Rothwell is no longer a bug bear, and that the building of the other part of the road is remarkably cheap, the prospects for a road seem good. The Licking Valley route will of course be abandoned as soon as they find that to build the road above the mouth of Beaver that a tunnel or bridge will be the result every few miles.

The citizens of this vicinity should use every endeavor to place means of information in the hands of the railroad people, and to bring to notice the vast mineral and timber resources of this country.—Frenchburg Agitator.

Bad management keeps more people in poor circumstances than any other one cause. To be successful one must look ahead and plan ahead so that when a favorable opportunity presents itself he is ready to take advantage of it. A little forethought will also save much expense and valuable time. A prudent and careful man will keep a bottle of Chamberlain's Colic, Cholera and Diarrhoea Remedy in the house, the shiftless fellow will wait until necessity compels it and then ruin his best horse going for a doctor and have a big doctor bill to pay, besides; one pays out 25 cents, the other is out a hundred dollars and then wonders why his neighbor is getting rich while he is getting poorer. TRAINING (AND) FEED STABLES

I have opened my Training and Feed Stable, and will keep on hand plenty of feed and a full supply of vehicles and traps. Parties coming from a distance, who may desire horses pastured for a few days or weeks can have the best pasture at reasonable rates.

LIVERY STABLES.

Also, for the convenience and accommodation of guests of the Day House, at Hazel Green, and L Park Hotel at Torrent, I have opened nearby two first-class livery stables, where I will keep buggies, saddle horses and hacks for hire at all times. Persons wishing a vehicle to meet them at McCausey can telephone me and have any desired vehicle or saddle horse promptly.

I will also have a full supply of hacks for hire to drummers, which will be in charge of careful drivers, and for which they can contract by the day for any length of time.

Persons intending to visit Day and Swango Springs will be met at either McCausey or Torrent with team and driver, and I will have pleasure in shipping water for them whenever desired:

Day and Swango water, fresh and free, on ice and tap for guests at L Park Hotel.
